Documents of the International Conference

“Poverty, Inequality and Violence: is there a human rights response?”

organized by the World Organisation Against Torture
Geneva, 4 – 6 October 2005

The World Organisation Against Torture (OMCT) organized in Geneva from 4 to 6 October 2005 an international conference designed to answer the question “How can we prevent or reduce violence, including torture, by acting on the root causes found in violations of economic, social and cultural rights?”.

Human rights defenders from some 40 countries, United Nations human rights experts, representatives of international trade unions, academics, international officials and representatives of donors gathered for the three day conference to discuss the causal relationship between inequalities (poverty and violations of economic, social and cultural rights) and violence. Violence being understood in its broad sense, as state sponsored (torture, summary executions, disappearances, etc.), social and domestic violence.

While the impact of socio-economic factors on the emergence of violence has already been the subject of much research, the question has not been approached from a human rights perspective. In other words, the relationship between the enjoyment of economic, social and cultural rights and violations of civil and political rights – such as the right to life and the protection against torture – still needs to be examined.

The Conference is part of a project being carried out by the World Organization Against Torture (OMCT) with the support of the Geneva International Academic Network, the Dutch Foundation ICCO, the Paris based “Fondation des droits de l’homme au travail” and the Swiss Federal Government (Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation). The project’s ultimate objective is to identify specific actions which the various actors can take to reduce violence by acting on its economic, social and cultural root causes.

The Conference based its work on a study entitled “Poverty, inequality and violence: The Economic, social and cultural root causes of violence, including torture, a human rights perspective” carried out by OMCT. That study includes an extensive (84 page) academic analysis investigating the correlations between violence and socio-economic inequalities as well as a chapter dealing with the relationship between access to resources and domestic violence in South Africa. A further chapter examines the relationship between economic recession and violence in the developed economy of Sweden.

In addition, the study contains in-depth analyses of the situation in five countries (Argentina, Egypt, Nepal, South Africa and Uzbekistan) along with case studies examining specific instances in four of those countries prepared in collaboration with national human rights partners. An analysis of how the United Nations Treaty Bodies, the ILO, the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and the World Trade Organization approach the issue of poverty, inequality and violence and how they have or could have an impact on that link. In connection with the conference, a wide range of reference and background documents were made available electronically to participants which are also available through this web link (see below).

Summaries of the principal points and conclusions of each chapter of the study are provided below.

Conference participants made a wide range of recommendations to improve the respect for human rights and to deal with the root causes of violence which can be found in violations of economic, social and cultural rights. These will be included in the report on the Conference now being prepared.

Conference documents

Accessible through this web page are the following documents relating to the Conference.

I. Poverty, inequality and violence: The Economic, social and cultural root causes of violence, including torture, a human rights perspective. Study prepared by the World Organisation Against Torture

A. Summaries of the main points and conclusions of the study (Summaries webpage (19/12/05)

B. The study

Table of contents and introduction (Web title page, contents and introduction (19/12/05)

Part I. Empirical studies of the correlation between social and economic inequalities and violence

A. The correlation of violence to socio-economic inequalities; an empirical analysis by Alan Wood
1. Summary of the analysis (Part I A Wood study rev 3 (19/12/05)
2. Full analysis (Conference report-Final document 24.04.04 plus errata)

B. Establishing the correlation between women’s home/property ownership and levels of domestic violence; a case study from South Africa by Cedric Loots of the Human Rights Institute of South Africa (Part I B Loots study rev 2.23/09/05)

C. Economic, social and cultural rights, inequality and victimisation;
The challenge for developed countries; Summary of studies by Anders Nilsson and Felipe Estrada (Part I C Nilsson & Estrada studies Rev 3 (19/12/05))

Part II. Impact of socio-economic factors on violence; the national level perspective: Human rights, the socio-economic situation and violence in five countries

A. Argentina; Country Profile and Case Study (Part II A Argentina Profile and Case Study rev 2 (19/12/05))

B. Egypt; Country Profile and Case Studies (Part II B EGYPT Profile and case studies rev 2 (19/12/05))

C. Nepal; Country Profile and Case Study (Part II C Nepal Profile and Case Study rev 4 (19/12/05))

D. South Africa; Country Profile (Part II D South Africa Country Profile rev 2 (19/12/05))

E. Uzbekistan; Country Profile and Case Studies (Part II E Uzbekistan Country Profile & Case Studies rev 2 (19/12/05))

Part III. Impact of socio-economic factors on violence; the perspectives of human rights mechanisms and international organizations

A. United Nations human rights organs
   1. United Nations Treaty bodies (Part III A 1 UN Treaty Bodies (25/09/05))
   2. United Nations Special procedures System (See Background documents, “Resource note, United Nations Special Procedure System”)

B. International labour, development, financial and trade organizations and the structural causes of violence
   1. International Labour Organisation (Part III B 1 ILO (26/09/05))
   2. World Bank and International Monetary Fund (Part III B 2 World Bank IMF (25/09/05))
   3. World Trade Organization (Part III B 3 WTO (25/09/05))

II. Background documents to the study

A. Establishing the correlation between women’s home/property ownership and levels of domestic violence; a case study from South Africa by Cedric Loots of the Human Rights Institute of South Africa. (South Africa case study report full)

B. Background documents for the country profiles and case studies provided by National Partners
   1. Argentina: final report (spanish), case study (spanish), final report (english)
2. Egypt: general evaluation, case studies

3. Nepal: general evaluation, case study

4. South Africa (Violence in South Africa Profile full text (23/09/05))

5. Uzbekistan: general evaluation, case study 1, case study 2

C. Other background documents

3. Resource note, United Nations Special Procedure System

D. Conference documents

1. Opening statements
   - Keynote address by Mrs. Louise Arbour, United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (Arbour address)
     - Statement by Mr. Eric Sottas, Director of the World Organization Against Torture

2. Conference programme

3. Provisional list of participants

---------------------